

0 September 19, 2013 Tags: Theatre, Youth

AuburnMassDaily.com

Pakachoag Music School Offering Youth Theater Program

---

Pakachoag Music School of Greater Worcester is offering a fall theater workshop for students in grades 1 through 5. “North Pole Star” is a musical written by Sally Albrecht and Jay Althouse. The story follows Santa’s eight famous reindeer as they audition for the title of “North Pole Star.” A takeoff on the popular reality television trend, the show features catchy, original tunes and a healthy dose of humor to poke fun at this pop culture phenomenon.

Experienced actor and director Christine Taylor directs the production. Fresh off a busy summer featuring the shows “Alice in Wonderland”, “You’re a Good Man Charlie Brown” and “Lemonade”, Taylor is busy preparing for another group of young actors.

The program cost is $205 per student, and there is a $25 discount for registrations received by September 12th. Registration is open until September 24th at http://www.pakmusic.org/wp-content/uploads/2012/12/13\_TheaterEnsembles1.pdf or you can call the school at 508-791-8159.

Rehearsals begin September 25th and continue through December 11th. The final performance is scheduled for Friday, December 13th at 6:30pm.

Pakachoag Music School of Greater Worcester was founded in 1982 as a community-based music program. Based at Pakachoag Church, 203 Pakachoag St. in Auburn, the school serves families from over 30 communities. Pakachoag Music School offers programs for toddlers through adults including early childhood, Suzuki classes, group (ensemble) instruction and private instruction.

Visit www.pakmusic.org for program registration information, school information and a calendar of music school events open to the public.