

Wednesday, August 28, 2013

Pakachoag Music Schools opens new site in West Boylston

By Richard Duckett, TELEGRAM & GAZETTE STAFF

rduckett@telegram.com

Add a comment

Pakachoag Music School of Greater Worcester will open a new satellite facility for music lessons at the First Congregational Church of West Boylston, 26 Central St., West Boylston, beginning in September.

The Auburn-based music school's current Shrewsbury satellite at the First Congregational Church of Shrewsbury will move to the West Boylston location as of Sept. 1.

"We're excited to be able to make our programs more easily accessible to families living north/northeast of Worcester," said Sarah Smongeski, the music school's executive director, in announcing the move.

"Students enrolling in private lessons will find this new space bright and inviting, and conveniently located with easy parking."

The First Congregational Church of West Boylston is located at the intersection of routes 12 and 140, six miles from Shrewsbury center.

The new location "provides more options for future growth," the school said in a statement.

Currently, the program serves roughly 40 families enrolled in lessons in piano, violin and flute; and "Music Together" early childhood classes.

"The growth of the lesson program has been steady," Smongeski said. "Families tell us they have heard good things about the school, and are excited to be able to access the Pakachoag program model in a location that makes it easier to juggle after-school transportation."

Contact Richard Duckett at rduckett@telegram.com